To those who are dearly loved by God and called to be God's people. Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ...

The Apostle Paul greeted fellow Christians with words like these as he wrote letters to early churches scattered all over the Roman Empire. Paul wrote to give comfort, support, and guidance in times of trouble to those called to be God's people as they wrestled with how to be "the church" together.

Paul's letters to Christian communities spread far and wide came to mind this past week as nearly 200,000 evacuees from Sonoma County were displaced. Even though our communication now happens at the touch of the screen, learning how to be God's people together in times of trouble is still an important part of our journey as disciples of Christ.

In response to the Kincade Fire, our church took in evacuees (including a veritable menagerie of pets) for several days and nights, providing hospitality and respite. People supported one another, shared meals together, and even had an impromptu hymn-sing.

We are incredibly thankful that the Kincade Fire was overall less devastating than the 2017 North Bay Fires, though for many it was frightening and disruptive. At this time, we are pleased to report that none of our church family lost homes. We pray for our neighbors who have not been so fortunate and those for whom the fires created undue physical or financial hardship.

As we recover from this fire event and head into the holiday season, our prayers naturally turn to those who need a helping hand. There is a list of ways to give and serve printed in last week's newsletter (now available at the Connect Center in the sanctuary entrance).

In gratitude for God's goodness, Paul reminded those who supported him in a time of distress: "My God will meet your every need out of his riches in the glory that is found in Christ Jesus. Let glory be given to God our Father forever and always (Phil 4:19-20)."

We are grateful that no disaster can limit the riches that are found in Christ Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirits.

Peace,
Emily
